Why Participate in a Clinical Trial

By participating in a clinical trial, you are taking an active role in the development and approval of new medicines and treatments. Clinical trials provide the medical community with valuable research and data that helps to facilitate the development of new and potentially life-saving therapies.

The Clinical Trial Team

THE SITE

Where trials are conducted; can be in various locations including hospitals, universities, clinics, or doctors' offices throughout the country

THE SPONSOR

Trials are funded by pharmaceutical companies, medical centers, voluntary groups, or other organizations and/or individuals

THE PRINCIPAL INVESTIGATOR (PI)

Researcher or healthcare professional who leads the trial and heads the research team

THE STUDY COORDINATOR

Works closely with the principal investigator and oversees the research team and the participants throughout the trial

THE PARTICIPANT

Also known as a patient or a study subject, is anyone who provides consent to be in the trial. This could mean you or your loved one

THE ETHICS REVIEW BOARD

A group of individuals who reviews and monitors the trial to ensure that the volunteers who participate in the trial are protected and treated fairly

WITHDRAWN

Has stopped early before enrolling its first participant

COMPLETED

Has ended normally, and participants are no longer being examined or treated

SUSPENDED

Has stopped early but may start again

TERMINATED

Has stopped early and will not start again

ACTIVE, NOT RECRUITING

Is ongoing, but potential new participants are not currently being recruited or enrolled

ENROLLING BY INVITATION

Is selecting its participants from a population, or group of people decided on by the researchers in advance

Different Study Recruitment Status

NOT YET RECRUITING

Has not started recruiting participants

RECRUITING

Is currently recruiting participants
